

BLUEDUST

Bluegrass Band

Blue dust

A Unique band with a unique sound and a strong visual impact. In the best tradition of bluegrass, the musicians dance around microphones in a succession of solos and mixed voices supported by the harmonious sounds of upright bass, mandolin and guitar with melodic flourishes of banjo.

Biography

Perry Meroni (Vocals and Guitar)

Perry Meroni is the 'voice' of the group. He is described by many as the twin brother of Lester Flatt Italian. With inimitable style, his perfect timing, acoustic guitar accompaniment and unique interpretation of the songs he sings, makes his the perfect voice for this traditional bluegrass band.

Dino Barbè (Banjo)

Dino Barbè is the band's banjoist whose music, as with all bluegrass banjoists, provides the soul of the band. He is a great J.D. Crowe's fan and his style is inspired also to master Earl Scruggs. He has a long experience in Italy and Europe where he has played with others Italian bands and won countless awards.

Josh Villa (Mandolin & Vocals)

Josh Villa mandolin is critical to the rhythm of the band. This versatile tenor fills a very traditional role in the group and has also performed with others bluegrass, old time and country groups. He has played in Italy and often in Switzerland.

Tony Spezzano (Guitar & Vocals)

Tonino (Tony) Spezzano is the group's guitarist and harmony vocal whose style, inspired by the famous flatpicking guitarists Tony Rice, Doc Watson and Charles Sawtelle, provides an excellent rhythm for the other members. A big fan of bluegrass he plays also with another band. He has played in events and festival in Italy, Switzerland and Germany.

Marco Centemeri (Double Bass & Vocals)

Marco Centemeri supports the band with his upright bass creating a solid, rhythmic foundation. His music background rise on the Bluegrass roots. He collaborated with other groups and he has played in Italy and Europe. Actually he plays also with another band.
